

TRUANT TAILOR WANTS JOB, NOT BLUSHING BRIDE

Mr. Feldman, of Georgetown, Baltimore, and Martinsburg Continues to Shun Altar.

Louis Feldman, Georgetown tailor, has had one experience on the sea of matrimony—and, he says, he does not want another. He just wants to work peaceably. Feldman is working for William Luria, at Martinsburg, W. Va., after practically deserting his fiancée, Mrs. Rose Binder, of Baltimore. He is alleged to have told Mrs. Binder he was coming to Washington to withdraw $12,000 from a local bank. He disappeared later on in the day and nothing was heard from him until Inspector Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives, located the tailor in Martinsburg. Dispatches from Martinsburg state that Feldman is anxious to remain a widower and that he never had $12,000 in a Washington bank. Mrs. Binder has threatened to file suit for breach of promise.

ROMANCE AND TRAGEDY IN REAL LIFE OF FILM STARS

Fay King Says There Is Enough of Both for Dramas.

By FAY KING.

The other day I'm lamping a wedding group in the picture, and everybody looks so pleased with being there, with each other, I couldn't help thinking that everything does happen for the best, because if this bunch are as happy as they seem it took four divorces, a suicide and an accident to bring them together. The bride, so happy and sweet in her white hat and dress, snuggling behind a bouquet of orchids and lilies, was once just as daff over another guy as she is over the groom in that picture. I've heard she would marry him, too, in spite of some family opposition, and for a little while less than a year they were sublimely happy. Before their first anniversary he ran into a bank with his high-powered car and was killed. Of course the little bride was all broke up, and I remember meeting her at a dinner once and feeling so sorry for all her tears and somber little black dress.

Wedded To Pretty Girl.

At that time the bridegroom in this picture was married to a girl as pretty and famous as his present bride. And she loved him as great plenty as this girl does. One day the news came from Paris that his beautiful bride had committed suicide.

He was so broken up I hear that her name was never allowed to be mentioned for ever and ever so long in his presence.

At about that time the lovely matron of honor, who is standing nearby in the picture with her hand on her husband's neck, indicating gently where he is apt to get it if he looks too admiringly at the new bride, was married to another man, and, being Catholic, nobody ever thought there would be a divorce, and her husband there in the picture with her was married to a very charming lady, and their handsome son made them look very much married and happy.

Divorce Shocks World.

One day the world was surprised to read of their divorce, and not long after the lady who is now his Mrs. got a divorce from her husband, and the next headline of importance declared them to have married each other.

The little girl standing in the front row was about that time living with her daddy and mother, another member of the family. That ended in a divorce, too, and the little girl is now adopted by her grandmother, so she is really a sister to her mother and her aunt.

Among the guests in the picture I notice a well-known vaudeville actor. At the time that these other events were taking place he was married to a sprightly dandy who danced beautifully with him. That match smashed up, too, and alongside of him in this picture is his second wife.

They all look very happy together in the picture, and I couldn't help thinking as I looked at it how much, as I said before, had to happen before all this could be as it is.

That's the way it is in life, each step, no matter how hard, leads up on to something we shall be very glad to have some day, just as these folks all seem to be so happy, now to have each other.

Funny, ain't it?

"All's well that ends well," if this, indeed, be the END.

COAL EXPORTS SMALL

AS STRIKE CONTINUES

Owing to the continuance of the coal strike through the month of July the tonnage of both bituminous and anthracite exported was very small, the Commerce Department announced today.

During July of this year exports of anthracite coal were 371,343 tons less than shipments in July a year ago, and bituminous exports were 2,282,702 tons under the figures for the same month of last year.

Coke exports, however, increased 8,557 tons in July over the shipments in July, 1921, and during the seven months ended with July 32,100 more tons were sent abroad than in the corresponding period a year ago.

BORED WAITRESS YAWNS;

DISLOCATES HER JAW

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Miss Dorothy Lebas, a waitress at the Nichols Hotel in Patchogue, L. I., yawned while listening to the conversation of a dinner party. She dislocated her jaw, and her efforts to get it back caused one of the party to complain that the waitress was making faces at her.

The diner thereupon indignantly summoned the manager, but the manager sent for a doctor. The doctor gave Miss Lebas chloroform and reset her jaw.

HYLAN'S TRANSIT PLANS

PAID BY W. J. BRYAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Mayor Hylan has received from William Jennings Bryan a letter praising his plan to municipalize the entire transit web spread over the greater city by subway, elevated and surface car lines.

Four of our national platforms have said that a private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable, and that competition in street railways being impossible, the transit system of a city comes within the definition of a natural monopoly," said Mr. Bryan.

SHIP CRIPPLED IN BAY DURING HAIL DOWNPOUR

Much Damage Caused in Maryland to Greenhouses and Crops.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 1.—Thousands of dollars' damage was done to greenhouses and growing crops in the new annex and the county, and the steamer Virginia, of the Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic Railway Company, was crippled in the Chesapeake bay yesterday when one of the worst hailstorms of years swept over this section of the State. In florist establishments thousands of panes of glass were broken.

The Virginia was left helpless when the engines broke down as she was off the mouth of the Magoth river. Passengers were given a thrill as three other ships—the Talbot, Tred Avon and the Cambridge—responded to the Virginia's signals of distress. The passengers on the Virginia were transferred to the Talbot, while the other two vessels towed the disabled ship back to Baltimore.

The Virginia left Baltimore for Salisbury at 5 p. m. Difficulty with the engines was experienced before reaching the bay and off the mouth of the Magoth they broke down completely leaving the ship helpless. Fortunately, the Talbot, bound south for the Choptank river, was in the vicinity and immediately went to the aid of the Virginia, taking her in tow and turning back toward Baltimore.

Making slow progress the two vessels were overtaken about 9 o'clock by the Tred-Avon on her night trip up from Love Point. After a hurried consultation between Captain Clark of the Tred-Avon, and Captain Cochran, of the Talbot, passengers of the Virginia were transferred to the former steamer, which again turned south the Tred-Avon taking her place on the end of the towline.

The hundred passengers on the Tred-Avon, many of whom had arranged to make connections for Washington or Philadelphia for a time feared the delay would upset their plans.

Paul Bostow is in general charge of arrangements for the outing. Officers of the association are Robert Wilson, president; Lee Perion, vice president; Harry Kennedy, secretary, and F. W. Bostow, treasurer.

REDUCES TOO MUCH, HER

HUSBAND GETS DIVORCE

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Anxious to have a waist "like a wasp," the wife of a Berlin tradesman followed the instructions of an anti-fat specialist, with the result that in the course of a few weeks she reduced her weight by one-third.

Incidentally, however, she became extremely pale, and in the eyes of her husband, lost her personal charm.

He applied for a divorce and the court granted his claim.

MEXICO CITY GROWING: MORE WOMEN THAN MEN

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—The City of Mexico, capital and metropolis of the republic, according to an announcement by the director-general of statistics, has a population of 615,307. This compares with 471,066 in 1910 and 368,898 in 1900. The limits of the City of Mexico are tightly drawn and beyond them are suburbs containing several hundred thousand additional population. The city itself comprises only a small part of the federal district, which corresponds politically to the District of Columbia in the United States. An interesting feature of the Mexico City population figures is the great disparity between the number of men and women. In 1900 there were 173,847 men and 195,251 women. In 1910 there were 218,774 men and 252,292 women. Last year's census gives 271,955 men and 343,412 women.

C. S. BOWERS, 479 N St., S. W.

says: "My kidneys acted so often I had to get up during the night, to pass the kidney secretions. They were highly colored and contained sediment. Inflammation of the bladder came on and was very painful. I was bothered with an ache in my back and when I tried to lift, my back became weak. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and it only took a few boxes to drive the pain from my back and make my kidneys act right."

Mrs. W. H. DOGGETT, 205 E Street N.E.

says: "When I moved to this city I suffered severe pains ran through my back. I tired easily and was nervous. Spots appeared before my eyes and blurred my sight. My kidneys acted irregularly. I bought Doan's Kidney Pills at the Peoples Drug Store, and after using them the trouble went away."

Mrs. Doggett gave the above statement September 5, 1921, and on April 28, 1922, she said: "Doan's did me a world of good, and I gladly recommend them."

J. B. King, retired farmer, 607 G St., S. E.

says: "My kidneys were put out of fix by a cold and I suffered with backache. When I stooped, knife-like pains darted across my kidneys and the muscles in my back were so drawn at times I couldn't move around. My kidneys didn't act often enough and the secretions were scanty. One of the family had received fine results from Doan's Kidney Pills so I started to use them. They eased the backache and thoroughly regulated the action of my kidneys."
